STATE NEWS.

Aroostook.

Mr. A. F. Owen, one of the early settlers in Presque Isle, died last week in that town, after a brief sickness.

There were shipped from Houlton station from June 6 to 11, inclusive, the following number of cars: Horses, 2; shingles, 19; hay, 5; lumber, 3; potatoes, 2; miscellaneous, 4; leather, 3; wool, 1. Total, 39

James McAtee, of Hodgdon, had his right hand badly lacerated by a circular saw in Sharp & Ketchum's mill in that town, Monday. He was brought to Houlton and had to suffer amputation of the first and second fingers.

The largest brook trout exhibited this season, was seen in Houlton, Monday. It was captured in Chandler's stream, Blaine, with a fly, by R. B. Feeley, of Houlton, and weighed five and one-half pounds. It was a square tail trout.

A partial program for the Fourth of July celebration in Houlton has been announced, to which other features will be added. As soon as excursion rates can be made with the railroad, and other minor matters arranged, the committee will put out their bills.

Mr. Geo. W. Maxfield shipped ten tons of wool from Houlton station last week, all purchased in that and surrounding towns. Mr. Maxfield has paid to the farmers of Aroostook county the past year $20,000 for wool and thinks the farmers should pay more attention to sheep raising and give less thought to more railroads for the present. Farmers should increase their flocks of sheep, for their sheep, lambs and wool are wanted, and for which there is a market right at their door and cash in the hand.

Cumberland.

A little girl, about two years old, a daughter of Mr. Murray, of Portland, fell from an upper window, a distance of twenty-five feet, striking on a brick sidewalk. It was feared she might have been internally injured, although no bones were broken, but Tuesday she was lively as a cricket.

The other morning, as Mr. Herbert Libby, of Portland, deputy clerk of the courts, was looking out of his parlor window, he saw a beautiful bird about the size of a pigeon, standing on the piazza, and a cat watching it. He softly opened the window and went towards the bird, expecting it would fly away. To his surprise the bird allowed him to take it up and carry it into the house. It appeared perfectly tame, and would perch on a stick and permit itself to be carried all over the house. One morning the window was left open, and the bird flew out, enjoyed himself a little while in the open air, and then flew back again. It is thought the bird is one of a rare species. It is perfectly white, except that it has a dark ring, the width of an ordinary ribbon, around its neck, and it is about the size of a small pigeon.

Saturday afternoon a number of boys were bathing in the old canal basin, in Portland. One of the boys, named Harry Stover, who could not swim, was paddling around on a log, when he lost his balance and fell backward into the water which was several feet over his head. His cries attracted the attention of the boys on the bank, and Master Ogle Whitten plunged into the water without a moment's hesitation and started for Stover. The latter had gone down twice before Whitten reached and grabbed him. He managed to keep his head above water and reached the shore with difficulty. Stover was very much exhausted when they reached the bank and it took some minutes to revive him. But for the presence of mind and bravery of young Whitten, Stover would undoubtedly have been drowned.

Hancock.

Real estate negotiations are the order of the day at Southwest Harbor. J. T. R. Freeman sold to capitalists last week, about thirteen acres for $15,000 —property located on Clark's Point. Mr. Freeman has also, in company with A. J. Holmes and others, recently purchased the Stanley Point, consisting of about seventeen acres, paying $5,700 for the tract. A great amount of land has been bonded, with good prospects of selling at a high rate.

Knox.

Camden has had the honor of furnishing Sacramento, Cal., with a mayor for two years, in the person of Hon. Jas. P. Dyer. Eastern Maine seems to have the preference there. Marshal Stevens was for many years Chief of Police, and James H. Jones, a prominent banker.

Hon. M. C. Blake, of San Francisco, Cal., is expected at Camden, this month. He is an old resident of Camden; has been Mayor of San Francisco, Judge, and occupied other places of honor and trust on the Pacific coast. He was at one time Collector of the port of Belfast.

John Dow, of Rockland, bought a cigar of A. L. Richardson one day last week, and on smoking it found a small gold ring on the inside. The cigar was of Pennsylvania make, and it was evidently not a prize, as the box had no lottery attachment. The only way to account for the find is that some lady cigar maker accidentally manufactured her ring into the cigar, it being evidently a lady's ring.

The pipe of the Camden and Rockland Water Company was run under Goose River, Rockport, Sunday, and under Megunticook stream, Camden, Monday. The crew was worked Sunday, as the water could be let out of the stream that day without interfering with the work of the mills. When the gap at Camden is filled there will be but 3,000 feet lacking of a continuous line of pipe from the pond to the Stearns cottage, Camden.

Capt. C. H. Bramhall is putting a boiler in, and renovating the steamer City Point (whose name will be changed to Sorrento) for the Frenchman's Bay and Mount Desert Land and Water Company. When completed she will run between Sorrento and Bar Harbor. The Camden Herald in an editorial this week, shows to the people the advantages to be derived from a railroad between there and Rockland. The survey is being pushed with vigor, and it is believed that Camden will vote the necessary aid to build the same.

Oxford.

The pulp mill of the Poland Paper Company at Canton, is shut down for want of lime, which is in transit. It has been rumored that the real cause of their shutting down is a strike of all the employes, on account of the ten per cent. reduction. Seven firemen at the mills refused to work on this account, and were immediately discharged. Their places, it is stated, will be filled at once. The company say this affair will not interfere with the starting up of the mill as soon as the lime arrives.

Piscataquis.

The annual meeting of the Monson Maine Slate Company was held at their office, Tuesday, June 7th, and the following officers elected: President, D. R. Straw; clerk, Wm. Paine; treasurer, Chas. H. Fifield; directors, C. H. Fifield, Wm. Mack, Cas. Odell, Salem; Geo. G. Procter, Boston; D. R. Straw, Guilford.

Monday afternoon, week, a small child of Peter Johnson, of Monson, while playing near the railroad track, fell into a pit from which dirt had been taken for the road, now filled with water. It remained in the water some minutes before it was rescued and came very near dying. By prompt medical aid it was saved.

On Tuesday, week, a number of the owners in the Monson Maine Slate Company with some invited guests arrived at the Lake Hebron Hotel, Monson. The party included Isaac T. Smith, New York; Hon. Geo. B. Loring, C. F. Pousland, Dr. Wm. Mack, Salem; Geo. G. Proctor, Boston; C. H. Fifield, Salem; D. R. Straw and family, of Guilford.

Mr. B. F. Eldridge, who is one of the commissioners on the appeal for laying out the highway between Moosehead Lake and Chesuncook Lake, informs us that the hearing is appointed at the Winnegarnock House, Head of the Lake, on the first day of September next. A good many people are interested in the matter in issue. The opposition to the road comes from the owners of timber lands who would have to bear a good deal of expense for what they claim is not necessary to public convenience. The County Commissioners laid the road and the land owners appealed.—Gazette.

On Tuesday week, John C. Tripp, fish warden, went to the head of Lake Hebron and at the mouth of several brooks discovered five fish traps, says the Monson State. They were about three feet long and a foot in diameter, made of willow and maple twigs. At the bottom the ends were brought together and tied at the top; the twigs were in a circle of about a foot's diameter, with the ends turned over a hoop into the trap and fastened about six inches inside of the trap, with an opening two inches in diameter, so that the head of the trap was shaped very much like a spittoon. Dams had been built across the brooks and these traps set in them, about a foot from the bottom of the brook, so that trout and other fish attempting to go up these streams must go into the traps. The traps were baited with chubs and other fish. There were beaten paths to the traps showing that certain parties have been catching trout in this unlawful manner for some time. Later in the day another trap was found by some boys.

Sagadahoc.

James A. Proctor, of Richmond, who is building a cottage at Popham Beach, has put a marine bicycle in the lake which is a novelty in its way. It consists of two air-tight boats twenty feet long and eight inches wide, placed three feet apart, and is propelled by a bicycle, with small water wheel in the stern. This marine bicycle can be propelled very much faster than a row boat. It will be a great attraction on this beautiful lake.

The Canadian Pacific Line.

HUNDREDS OF MEN IN THE WOODS OF NORTHERN MAINE.

It can hardly be said that the work on the International Railroad has begun in earnest yet. Operations are going on along the whole line, but full crews of laborers have not yet arrived. By the middle of summer there will be four or five thousand men on the line. Then there will be some business in Northern Maine. Although the line through Maine is called the International (formerly the Megantic), as organized under the laws of Maine, it has really passed under the control of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It is the engineering staff of the Canadian Pacific that is doing the work; the whole organization is Canadian Pacific. Last fall about a dozen or twenty miles of the road were completed into Maine from the West. The northern peak of Franklin county was crossed, and Holeb Pond, in Somerset county, reached. From Holeb Pond to Mattawamkeag, 120 miles through northern Maine wilderness, is now under construction. A. L. Hogg, of Montreal, is chief engineer, and he has under him four divisional engineers. There is the Moose River Division, with headquarters at Moose river. James A. Patison is in charge as divisional engineer. The end of the Canadian Pacific track at Holeb Pond is the base of supplies. The men, horses and supplies come in from Canada, and the people of Northern Franklin and Somerset counties see little of the operations, which are carried on far to the north of the Rangeley regions. Going east the next division of the Moose River Division is the Greenville Division. Greenville, at the foot of Moosehead Lake, is the headquarters and base of supplies for this region. The Greenville Division is about 37 miles in length, stretching each way from the Lake, and is under the charge of Divisional Engineer S. B. McKee. The supplies, men and horses all come in by way of Bangor, and the people of this region see the magnitude of the work. At Greenville, also, Chief Engineer Hogg has his headquarters. East of the Greenville Division is the Brownville Division, under the charge of Divisional Engineer Matthew Neilson. Brownville is the base of supplies and operations. The fourth and last division is the Mattawamkeag Division under charge of Alexander Middleton.

The manager of construction, who is over all the work, is James Ross, of Montreal. The surveys of course have all been made; the work of the engineering force at present is principally to see that the work of the contractors is properly done. The whole 120 miles was divided into ten contracts, and let out to Canadian contractors, men who have been taking work of the Canadian Pacific from the Rocky Mountains through. The first two contracts, beginning at the western end of the construction at Holeb Pond, were taken by Luke Madigan; they cover twenty-four miles. The third contract of 18 miles is done by Starrs, Askwith & Co. The fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh, about 53 miles, and located around Greenville, was taken by McKenzie, Mann & Co. Angus Sinclair has the eighth and ninth contracts, with his headquarters at Lincoln. The tenth contract, in the vicinity of Mattawamkeag, is let to James A. Gordon & Son. These contractors have in turn sublet parts of the work, so that the work has been divided into short sections in many places.

The engineering difficulties of the work are considerable. In the first place the conditions under which the Canadian Government gives its large subsidy per mile requires easy curves and grades. Then there are several large bridges and trestles to be built. The Kennebec river, at the point where it leaves the lake, will be crossed by a three-span iron bridge. The Bangor & Piscataquis road, at Greenville will be crossed overhead, necessitating considerable trestle work. Then, east of the lake, in the vicinity of Wilson Pond Stream and Ship Pond, there will be trestles 130 feet high. On the borders of Moosehead Lake, there is one cut through the solid rock fifty feet deep. Between Greenville and Brownville, the hardest part of the line by far, there will be several deep cuts. At Mattawamkeag there will be a bridge across the Penobscot river.

The limit of time on all the contracts is such that on the part from Holeb Pond to Greenville, and from Brownville to Mattawamkeag, track laying can begin by September, and trains can run by November, probably. That part from Greenville to Brownville is very difficult of construction, and cannot be finished before next spring.

But when the track reaches Greenville, at the foot of the Lake, the Canadian Pacific can afford to wait a year. For by way of the Piscataquis railroad it can reach Bangor and Portland,—it can in other words reach a winter port, and begin its great transcontinental traffic.

The Fashions.

[From the New York Evening Post.]

Black faille, black surah, and black cashmere are severally made up in combination with black and white striped or large plaided merveilleux silks.

Among the new attractions in millinery are the princesse bonnets and gypsy hats of lilac, cameo, primrose, cream white, and sea-green China crape, trimmed with montures of arbutus blossoms, white crape roses, and foliage (the latter exquisitely shaded), Neapolitan violets, lilies of the valley, and creamy carnations, all sprinkled with dew. These head coverings will be the darlings of fashion at Saratoga and Newport this summer, worn en suite with toilets of crepaline, silk etamine, flower-striped silk muslins, organdies, and tinted grenadines.

Outside of the morning and travelling costumes made in tailor fashion, but few stylish dresses are seen made of a single fabric. Promenade suits, visiting and dinner gowns, and five o'clock and evening toilets are composed of two and often three different materials. It is no trivial task, however, to commingle these varied colors and combinations without clashing or offending the eye. It demands unerring taste and an artist's instinct for color. A lady of rare culture, commenting upon this matter, recently said: "The hidden rule that underlies all these combinations is to derive the tint of one fabric from the color of another, the suggestion of one pale hue from the intensity of its neighbor."

Softly draping silks, variously known as Bengaline, Sicilienne, faille, and Victoria rep, are in very fashionable favor. The new beautiful laces, embroidered gauze or net, either black, ecru, or the color of the silk, are the garnitures for these handsome gowns, in combination with jet or iridescent bead passementerie. The silk linings particularly those in black or white, may be cut out on the bodice in a casement, U or V shape, or simply turned back, leaving it transparent for dressy home wear. When desired for the promenade or for a summer evening drive, the silk piece may be put in its original place, or a very light black surah underwaist may be worn in lieu of the regular corset waist, this cut in close Jersey style. This at once transforms the basque into a high-necked garment, and where the sleeves are simply of lace, a second pair may be added to the corset waist just mentioned.

The new draperies are arranged very long front and back, leaving both sides of the lower skirt uncovered from the belt down. The front drapery drops in a point towards the right side, being made wide and ample by the pleatings set on to the belt. Graceful, wave-like folds are caught up in pleats on the left hip, these falling to meet like curves descending from the right side, but adjusted lower down. The sides of the lower skirt may be arranged in lengthwise pleats, alike on both sides, or it may have plaided or striped panels, or bands of velvet ribbon, or rows of embroidery on a deep frill of lace, or there may be a flounce of very deep lace, with a scarf drapery of the dress goods as a heading. The back drapery is confined to a very narrow space when pleated or gathered to the belt, but it is extremely full, and may hang straight to the foot, or else open up the centre in wing points, with a box pleating of the goods showing between, or may simply disclose a full lower skirt.

One of the pretty combinations of the moment, of which there are so many, shows an underskirt of cream-colored satin foulard, brocaded with rose blossoms in shaded pink, surrounded with delicate green leaves. Upon this is draped in such a manner as to leave the left side entirely exposed, a shepherdess polonaise of moss-green crepe de chine, the silk of the finest texture and of wonderful lustre. The drapery is looped high on the left side, almost to the waist, where is placed a cluster of moss-green and pale-pink ribbons with loops of unequal length. The sleeves reach to just below the elbow, and the corsage portion, also of the figured foulard, opens over a blouse vest of the crepe de chine, which is trimmed with a jaboted frill of cream lace from throat to belt. This costume is designed for a summer evening dancing dress for a pretty young blonde, whose rose-and-lily complexion enables her to don this very trying tint, just now so fashionable, with impunity.

Boots and shoes are less pointed, without, however, being quite square at the toes. The two styles have made mutual concessions, and in consequence boots taper, but stop short before forming a decided point. Silk stockings, in colors of fawn, heliotrope, Roman red, pale bronze, moss green, cameo, and silver, are considered the hose par excellence this season to be worn with fine summer shoes and sandals of light-weight French kid. Very ornate low-cut sandals and slippers, with tabs, straps, bands, and buckles, are still very fashionable for drawing-room toilets, but are never adopted for the street, except for carriage wear during the very heated summer weather; however, half low Newport ties, Fedora shoes, and medium-high opera shoes will be seen on the promenade, these invariably worn with stockings of jet black, no other color being admissible, unless perhaps exception be made of golden-brown silk stockings or hose of fine lisle thread of this color, worn with half low shoes of bronze kid.

A dainty dress for summer evening wear, displayed by a Broadway importer, is made of pale rosy lilac satin foulard, embroidered with white silk dots. The round skirt is laid in very deep kilts with panels between of plain lilac satin foulard, decorated with cascades of cream-white lace from belt to hem. The pointed cuirass bodice of the figured foulard is cut out heart shape at the neck, with a veiling set in of cream-white silk illusion, to a drawn in by close shirrings to fit closely, to a violet velvet dog-collar, embroidered with pale heliotrope beads. The sleeves are short, with butterfly bows of lilac satin on each shoulder. A very broad sash of mauve satin, laid in three deep loops, touches the lower edge of the corsage on the right side of the skirt, crossing the front transversely, the long ends caught up lightly one over the other. At the point where the scarf ends meet is placed a large silver buckle, set with mock amethysts. Pink roses, sprays of heliotrope, and lilies of the valley are the flowers to be worn with this charming costume.

Fine French cashmere and various light woolen fabrics, that resemble canvas and mohair, are used by Paris modistes in combination with soft silks that have velvet or satin stripes. Ecru surah forms a pretty French model, this sprinkled with dark golden-brown figures. This material composes the basque, and forms the long draperies over a plain, slightly full skirt of ecru and golden-brown lace, which shows on each side from belt to foot. Upon the bodice is a shirred vest of pink China crape, showing revers of golden-brown velvet beyond, with collar and cuffs to match.

Decided contrasts in color and the use of summer cloths are the features of the most elegant French tailor gowns. For example, a heliotrope armure opens over a vest and petticoat of Suede cloth, decorated with bands of heliotrope silk gimp. A moss-green nuns' cloth costume has a lower skirt of gray-white pilot-cloth, striped with moss-green. Serge gowns of bright Roman red for natty young ladies are half concealed by elaborate braid embroideries, or with passementeries in black or very deep geranium red, while for more mature women are dark green costumes draped on golden brown, or suits of gray cloth over underdresses of striped cloth, showing three distinct shades of gray alternating with a hair stripe of Japanese red. The basques of these dresses are handsomely trimmed in front, but are severely plain in the back, often being cut without the postillion pleats, and in many cases being finished with a single point, or with all the handful of pleats in the middle seam very closely lapped over each other and cut in points at the end.

The New York Herald's Washington special says there are said to be serious disagreements among the members of the Inter-State Commerce Commission on the question of the long and short haul clause. The rumor is that Cooley and Morrison favor the enforcement of the law complete, while the other three believe the clause in question should be permanently suspended, at least as far as it affects southern roads. It is believed that the latter course will prevail.

Walter S. Conlon, of Kansas City, Mo., Grand Secretary and Treasurer of the Switchmen's Mutual Aid Association, is said to have absconded with the entire funds of the association, estimates of which range from $5,000 to $16,500.

Specials to the New York Times from Lachine and Montreal say that ex-Reading Clerk Maloney of the New York board of aldermen of 1884, has forsaken his old haunts in Canada and it is believed that he is now in New York. There is no direct clue to his whereabouts at this time.

Purify Your Blood

Your blood may be full of impurities, but Hood's Sarsaparilla will thoroughly cleanse, enrich, and vitalize it. The most severe cases of scrofula, salt rheum, boils, pimples, etc., yield to Hood's Sarsaparilla. It also cures catarrh, rheumatism, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, kidney and liver complaints, sharpens the appetite, and builds up the whole system. Give it a trial now.

"I suffered with catarrh fifteen years. Took Hood's Sarsaparilla and I am not troubled any with catarrh, and my general health is much better than for years." F. W. LILLIS, Postal Clerk Chicago & St. Louis Railroad.

That Tired Feeling

Hood's Sarsaparilla entirely removes that tired feeling, and gives new life and strength to the whole body. "I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt like a different person. That extreme tired feeling has gone, my appetite returned, and it toned me up generally." CLARA W. PHELPS, Shirley, Mass.

"I was afflicted with rheumatism twenty years. Previous to 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse, and at one time was almost helpless. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me more good than all the other medicines I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley Village, Mass.

Perfect Hair
Indicates a natural and healthy condition, of the scalp, and of the glands through which nourishment is obtained. When, in consequence of age and disease, the hair becomes weak, thin, and gray, Ayer's Hair Vigor will strengthen it, restore its original color, promote its rapid and vigorous growth, and impart to it the lustre and freshness of youth.

I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a long time, and am convinced of its value. When I was 17 years of age my hair began to turn gray. I commenced using the Vigor, and was surprised at the good effects it produced. It not only restored the color to my hair, but so stimulated its growth, that I have now more hair than ever before.—J. W. Edwards, Coldwater, Miss.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,
Sold by all Druggists and Perfumers.

IF YOU ARE SUFFERING from debility and loss of appetite; if your stomach is out of order, or your mind confused; take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine will restore physical force and elasticity to the system, more surely and speedily than any tonic yet discovered.

For six months I suffered from liver and stomach troubles. My food did not nourish me, and I became weak and very much emaciated. I took six bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and was cured. —J. M. Palmer, Springfield, Mass. 11

STATE NEWS.

Aroostook.

Mr. A. F. Owen, one of the early settlers in Presque Isle, died last week in that town, after a brief sickness.

There were shipped from Houlton station from June 6 to 11, inclusive, the following number of cars: Horses, 2; shingles, 19; hay, 5; lumber, 3; potatoes, 2; miscellaneous, 4; leather, 3; wool, 1. Total, 39.

James McAtee, of Hodgdon, had his right hand badly lacerated by a circular saw in Sharp & Ketchum's mill, in that town, Monday. He was brought to Houlton and had to suffer amputation of the first and second fingers.

The largest brook trout exhibited this season, was seen in Houlton, Monday. It was captured in Chandler's stream, Blaine, with a fly, by R. B. Feeley, of Houlton, and weighed five and one-half pounds. It was a square tail trout.

A partial program for the Fourth of July celebration in Houlton has been announced, to which other features will be added. As soon as excursion rates can be made with the railroad, and other minor matters arranged, the committee will put out their bills.

Mr. Geo. W. Maxfield shipped ten tons of wool from Houlton station last week, all purchased in that and surrounding towns. Mr. Maxfield has paid to the farmers of Aroostook county the past year $20,000 for wool and thinks the farmers should pay more attention to sheep raising and give less thought to more railroads for the present. Farmers should increase their flocks of sheep, for their sheep, lambs and wool are wanted, and for which there is a market right at their door and cash in the hand.

Cumberland.

A little girl, about two years old, a daughter of Mr. Murray, of Portland, fell from an upper window, a distance of twenty-five feet, striking on a brick sidewalk. It was feared she might have been internally injured, although no bones were broken, but Tuesday she was lively as a cricket.

The other morning, as Mr. Herbert Libby, of Portland, deputy clerk of the courts, was looking out of his parlor window, he saw a beautiful bird about the size of a pigeon, standing on the piazza, and a cat watching it. He softly opened the window and went towards the bird, expecting it would fly away. To his surprise the bird allowed him to take it up and carry it into the house. It appeared perfectly tame, and would perch on a stick and permit itself to be carried all over the house. One morning the window was left open, and the bird flew out, enjoyed himself a little while in the open air, and then flew back again. It is thought the bird is one of a rare species. It is perfectly white, except that it has a dark ring, the width of an ordinary ribbon, around its neck, and it is about the size of a small pigeon.

Saturday afternoon a number of boys were bathing in the old canal basin, in Portland. One of the boys, named Harry Stover, who could not swim, was paddling around on a log, when he lost his balance and fell backward into the water, which was several feet over his head. His cries attracted the attention of the boys on the bank, and Master Ogle Whitten plunged into the water without a moment's hesitation and started for Stover. The latter had gone down twice before Whitten reached and grabbed him. He managed to keep his head above water and reached the shore with difficulty. Stover was very much exhausted when they reached the bank and it took some minutes to revive him. But for the presence of mind and bravery of young Whitten, Stover would undoubtedly have been drowned.

Hancock.

Real estate negotiations are the order of the day at Southwest Harbor. J. T. R. Freeman sold to capitalists last week, about thirteen acres for $15,000—property located on Clark's Point. Mr. Freeman has also, in company with A. I. Holmes and others, recently purchased the Stanley Point, consisting of about seventeen acres, paying $5,700 for the tract. A great amount of land has been bonded, with good prospects of selling at a high rate.

Knox.

Camden has had the honor of furnishing Sacramento, Cal., with a mayor for two years, in the person of Hon. Jas. P. Dyer. Eastern Maine seems to have the preference there. Marshal Stevens was for many years Chief of Police, and James H. Jones, a prominent banker.

Hon. M. C. Blake, of San Francisco, Cal., is expected at Camden, this month. He is an old resident of Camden, has been Mayor of San Francisco, Judge, and occupied other places of honor and trust on the Pacific coast. He was at one time Collector of the port of Belfast.

John Dow, of Rockland, bought a cigar of A. L. Richardson one day last week, and on smoking it found a small gold ring on the inside. The cigar was of Pennsylvania make, and it was evidently not a prize, as the box had no lottery attachment. The only way to account for the find is that some lady cigar maker accidentally manufactured her ring into the cigar, it being evidently a lady's ring.

The pipe of the Camden and Rockland Water Company was run under Goose River, Rockport, Sunday, and under Megunticook stream, Camden, Monday. The crew was worked Sunday, as the water could be let out of the stream that day without interfering with the work of the mills. When the gap at Camden is filled there will be but 3,000 feet lacking of a continuous line of pipe from the pond to the Stearns cottage, Camden.

Capt. C. H. Bramhall is putting a boiler in, and renovating the steamer City Point (whose name will be changed to Sorrento) for the Frenchman's Bay and Mount Desert Land and Water Company. When completed she will run between Sorrento and Bar Harbor. The Camden Herald in an editorial this week, shows to the people the advantages to be derived from a railroad between there and Rockland. The survey is being pushed with vigor, and it is believed that Camden will vote the necessary aid to build the same.

Oxford.

The pulp mill of the Poland Paper Company at Canton, is shut down for want of lime, which is in transit. It has been rumored that the real cause of their shutting down is a strike of all the employes, on account of the ten per cent. reduction. Seven firemen at the mills refused to work on this account, and were immediately discharged. Their places, it is stated, will be filled at once. The company say this affair will not interfere with the starting up of the mill as soon as the lime arrives.

Piscataquis.

The annual meeting of the Monson Maine Slate Company was held at their office, Tuesday, June 7th, and the following officers elected. President, D. R. Straw; clerk, Wm. Paine; treasurer, Chas. H. Fifield; directors, C. H. Fifield, Wm. Mack, Cns. Odell, Salem; Geo. G. Procter, Boston; D. R. Straw, Guilford.

Monday afternoon, week, a small child of Peter Johnson, of Monson, while playing near the railroad track, fell into a pit from which dirt had been taken for the road, now filled with water. It remained in the water some minutes before it was rescued and came very near dying. By prompt medical aid it was saved.

On Tuesday, week, a number of the owners in the Monson Maine Slate Company with some invited guests arrived at the Lake Hebron Hotel, Monson. The party included Isaac T. Smith, New York; Hon. Geo. B. Loring, C. F. Pousland, Dr. Wm. Mack, Salem; Geo. G. Proctor, Boston; C. H. Fifield, Salem; D. R. Straw and family, of Guilford.

Mr. B. F. Eldridge, who is one of the commissioners on the appeal for laying out the highway between Moosehead Lake and Chesuncook Lake, informs us that the hearing is appointed at the Winnegarnock House, Head of the Lake, on the first day of September next. A good many people are interested in the matter in issue. The opposition to the road comes from the owners of timber lands who would have to bear a good deal of expense for what they claim is not necessary to public convenience. The County Commissioners laid the road and the land owners appealed.—Gazette.

On Tuesday week, John C. Tripp, fish warden, went to the head of Lake Hebron and at the mouth of several brooks discovered five fish traps, says the Monson Slate. They were about three feet long and a foot in diameter, made of willow and maple twigs. At the bottom the ends were brought together and tied at the top; the twigs were in a circle of about a foot's diameter, with the ends turned over a hoop into the trap and fastened about six inches inside of the trap, with an opening two inches in diameter, so that the head of the trap was shaped very much like a spittoon. Dams had been built across the brooks and these traps set in them, about a foot from the bottom of the brook, so that trout and other fish attempting to go up these streams must go into the traps. The traps were baited with chubs and other fish. There were beaten paths to the traps showing that certain parties have been catching trout in this unlawful manner for some time. Later in the day another trap was found by some boys.

Sagadahoc.

James A. Proctor, of Richmond, who is building a cottage at Popham Beach, has, put a marine bicycle in the lake which is a novelty in its way. It consists of two air-tight boats twenty feet long and eight inches wide, placed three feet apart, and is propelled by a bicycle, with small water wheel in the stern. This marine bicycle can be propelled very much faster than a row boat. It will be a great attraction on this beautiful lake.

The Canadian Pacific Line.

HUNDREDS OF MEN IN THE WOODS OF NORTHERN MAINE.

It can hardly be said that the work on the International Railroad has begun in earnest yet. Operations are going on along the whole line, but full crews of laborers have not yet arrived. By the middle of summer there will be four or five thousand men on the line. Then there will be some business in Northern Maine. Although the line through Maine is called the International (formerly the Megantic), as organized under the laws of Maine, it has really passed under the control of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It is the engineering staff of the Canadian Pacific that is doing the work; the whole organization is Canadian Pacific. Last fall about a dozen or twenty miles of the road were completed into Maine from the West. The northern peak of Franklin county was crossed, and Holeb Pond, in Somerset county, reached. From Holeb Pond to Mattawamkeag, 120 miles through northern Maine wilderness, is now under construction. A. L. Hogg, of Montreal, is chief engineer, and he has under him four divisional engineers. There is the Moose River Division, with headquarters at Moose river. James A. Patison is in charge as divisional engineer. The end of the Canadian Pacific track at Holeb Pond is the base of supplies. The men, horses and supplies come in from Canada, and the people of Northern Franklin and Somerset counties see little of the operations, which are carried on far to the north of the Rangeley regions. Going east the next division of the Moose River Division is the Greenville Division. Greenville, at the foot of Moosehead Lake, is the headquarters and base of supplies for this region. The Greenville Division is about 37 miles in length, stretching each way from the Lake, and is under the charge of Divisional Engineer S. B. McKee. The supplies, men and horses all come in by way of Bangor, and the people of this region see the magnitude of the work. At Greenville, also, Chief Engineer Hogg has his headquarters. East of the Greenville Division is the Brownville Division, under the charge of Divisional Engineer Matthew Neilson. Brownville is the base of supplies and operations. The fourth and last division is the Mattawamkeag Division under charge of Alexander Middleton.

The manager of construction, who is over all the work, is James Ross, of Montreal. The surveys of course have all been made; the work of the engineering force at present is principally to see that the work of the contractors is properly done. The whole 120 miles was divided into ten contracts, and let out to Canadian contractors, men who have been taking work of the Canadian Pacific from the Rocky Mountains through. The first two contracts, beginning at the western end of the construction at Holeb Pond, were taken by Luke Madigan; they cover twenty-four miles. The third contract of 18 miles is done by Starrs, Ashwith & Co. The fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh, about 53 miles, and located around Greenville, was taken by McKenzie, Mann & Co. Angus Sinclair has the eighth and ninth contracts, with his headquarters at Lincoln. The tenth contract, in the vicinity of Mattawamkeag, is let to James A. Gordon & Son. These contractors have in turn sublet parts of the work, so that the work has been divided into short sections in many places.

The engineering difficulties of the work are considerable. In the first place the conditions under which the Canadian Government gives its large subsidy per mile requires easy curves and grades. Then there are several large bridges and trestles to be built. The Kennebec river, at the point where it leaves the lake, will be crossed by a three-span iron bridge. The Bangor & Piscataquis road at Greenville will be crossed overhead, necessitating considerable trestle work. Then, east of the lake, in the vicinity of Wilson Pond Stream and Ship Pond, there will be trestles 130 feet high. On the borders of Moosehead Lake, there is one cut through the solid rock fifty feet deep. Between Greenville and Brownville, the hardest part of the line by far, there will be several deep cuts. At Mattawamkeag there will be a bridge across the Penobscot river.

The limit of time on all the contracts is such that on the part from Holeb Pond to Greenville, and from Brownville to Mattawamkeag, track laying can begin by September, and trains can run by November probably. That part from Greenville to Brownville is very difficult of construction, and cannot be finished before next spring.

But when the track reaches Greenville, at the foot of the Lake, the Canadian Pacific can afford to wait a year. For by way of the Piscataquis railroad it can reach Bangor and Portland,—it can in other words reach a winter port, and begin its great transcontinental traffic.

The Fashions.

[From the New York Evening Post.]

Black faille, black surah, and black cashmere are severally made up in combination with black and white striped or large plaided merveilleux silks.

Among the new attractions in millinery are the princesse bonnets and gypsy hats of lilac, cameo, primrose, cream white, and sea-green China crape, trimmed with montures of arbutus blossoms, white crape roses, and foliage (the latter exquisitely shaded), Neapolitan violets, lilies of the valley, and creamy carnations, all sprinkled with dew. These head coverings will be the darlings of fashion at Saratoga and Newport this summer, worn en suite with toilets of crepaline, silk etamine, flower-striped silk muslins, organdies, and tinted grenadines.

Outside of the morning and travelling costumes made in tailor fashion, but few stylish dresses are seen made of a single fabric. Promenade suits, visiting and dinner gowns, and five o'clock and evening toilets are composed of two and often three different materials. It is no trivial task, however, to commingle these varied colors and combinations without clashing or offending the eye. It demands unerring taste and an artist's instinct for color. A lady of rare culture, commenting upon this matter, recently said: "The hidden rule that underlies all these combinations is to derive the tint of one fabric from the color of another, the suggestion of one pale hue from the intensity of its neighbor."

Softly draping silks, variously known as Bengaline, Sicilienne, faille, and Victoria rep, are in very fashionable favor. The new beautiful laces, embroidered gauze or net, either black, ecru, or the color of the silk, are the garnitures for these handsome gowns, in combination with jet or iridescent bead passementerie. The silk linings, particularly those in black or white, may be cut out on the bodice in a casement, U or V shape, or simply turned back, leaving it transparent for dressy home wear. When desired for the promenade or for a summer evening drive, the silk piece may be put in its original place, or a very light black surah underwaist may be worn in lieu of the regular corset waist, this cut in close Jersey style. This at once transforms the basque into a high-necked garment, and where the sleeves are simply of lace, a second pair may be added to the corset waist just mentioned.

The new draperies are arranged very long front and back, leaving both sides of the lower skirt uncovered from the belt down. The front drapery drops in a point towards the right side, being made wide and ample by the pleatings set on to the belt. Graceful, wave-like folds are caught up in pleats on the left hip, these falling to meet like curves descending from the right side, but adjusted lower down. The sides of the lower skirt may be arranged in lengthwise pleats, alike on both sides, or it may have plaided or striped panels, or bands of velvet ribbon, or rows of embroidery on a deep fall of lace, or there may be a flounce of very deep lace, with a scarf drapery of the dress goods as a heading. The back drapery is confined to a very narrow space when pleated or gathered to the belt, but it is extremely full, and may hang straight to the foot, or else open up the centre in wing points, with a box pleating of the goods showing between, or may simply disclose a full lower skirt.

One of the pretty combinations of the moment, of which there are so many, shows an underskirt of cream-colored satin foulard, brocaded with rose blossoms in shaded pink, surrounded with delicate green leaves. Upon this is draped in such a manner as to leave the left side entirely exposed, a shepherdess polonaise of moss-green crepe de chine, the silk of the finest texture and of wonderful lustre. The drapery is looped high on the left side, almost to the waist, where is placed a cluster of moss-green and pale-pink ribbons with loops of unequal length. The sleeves reach to just below the elbow, and the corsage portion, also of the figured foulard, opens over a blouse vest of the crepe de chine, which is trimmed with a jaboted frill of cream lace from throat to belt. This costume is designed for a summer evening dancing dress for a pretty young blonde, whose rose-and-lily complexion enables her to don this very trying tint, just now so fashionable, with impunity.

Boots and shoes are less pointed, without, however, being quite square at the toes. The two styles have made mutual concessions, and in consequence boots taper, but stop short before forming a decided point. Silk stockings, in colors of fawn, heliotrope, Roman red, pale bronze, moss green, cameo, and silver, are considered the hose par excellence this season to be worn with fine summer shoes and sandals of light-weight French kid. Very ornate low-cut sandals and slippers, with tabs, straps, bands, and buckles, are still very fashionable for drawing-room toilets, but are never adopted for the street, except for carriage wear during the very heated summer weather; however, half low Newport ties, Fedora shoes, and medium-high opera shoes will be seen on the promenade, these invariably worn with stockings of jet black, no other color being admissible, unless perhaps exception be made of golden-brown silk stockings or hose of fine lisle thread of this color, worn with half low shoes of bronze kid.

A dainty dress for summer evening wear, displayed by a Broadway importer, is made of pale rosy lilac satin foulard, embroidered with white silk dots. The round skirt is laid in very deep kilts with panels between of plain lilac satin foulard, decorated with cascades of cream-white lace from belt to hem. The pointed cuirass bodice of the figured foulard is cut out heart shape at the neck, with a vailing set in of cream-white silk illusion, this drawn in by close shirrings to fit closely to a violet velvet dog-collar, embroidered with pale heliotrope beads. The sleeves are short, with butterfly bows of lilac satin on each shoulder. A very broad sash of mauve satin, laid in three deep loops, touches the lower edge of the corsage on the right side of the skirt, crossing the front transversely, the long ends hanging up lightly one over the other. At the point where the scarf ends meet is placed a large silver buckle, set with mock amethysts. Pink roses, sprays of heliotrope, and lilies of the valley are the flowers to be worn with this charming costume.

Fine French cashmere and various light woolen fabrics, that resemble canvas and mohair, are used by Paris modistes in combination with soft silks that have velvet or satin stripes. Ecru surah forms a pretty French model, this sprinkled with dark golden-brown figures. This material composes the basque, and forms the long draperies over a plain, slightly full skirt of ecru and golden-brown lace, which shows on each side from belt to foot. Upon the bodice is a shirred vest of pink China crape, showing revers of golden-brown velvet beyond, with collar and cuffs to match.

Decided contrasts in color and the use of summer cloths are the features of the most elegant French tailor gowns. For example, a heliotrope armure opens over a vest and petticoat of Suede cloth, decorated with bands of heliotrope silk gimp. A moss-green nuns' cloth costume has a lower skirt of gray-white pilot-cloth, striped with moss-green. Serge gowns of bright Roman red for natty young ladies are half concealed by elaborate braid embroideries, or with passementeries in black or very deep geranium red, while for more mature women are dark green costumes draped on golden brown, or suits of gray cloth over underdresses of striped cloth, showing three distinct shades of gray alternating with a hair stripe of Japanese red. The basques of these dresses are handsomely trimmed in front, but are severely plain in the back, often being cut without the postillion pleats, and in many cases being finished with a single point, or with all the handful of pleats in the middle seam very closely lapped over each other and cut in points at the end.

The New York Herald's Washington special says there are said to be serious disagreements among the members of the Inter-State Commerce Commission on the question of the long and short haul clause. The rumor is that Cooley and Morrison favor the enforcement of the law complete, while the other three believe the clause in question should be permanently suspended, at least as far as it affects southern roads. It is believed that the latter course will prevail.

Walter S. Conlon, of Kansas City, Mo., Grand Secretary and Treasurer of the Switchmen's Mutual Aid Association, is said to have absconded with the entire funds of the association, estimates of which range from $5,000 to $16,500.

Specials to the New York Times from Lachine and Montreal say that ex-Reading Clerk Maloney of the New York board of aldermen of 1884, has forsaken his old haunts in Canada and it is believed that he is now in New York. There is no direct clue to his whereabouts at this time.

Perfect Hair
Indicates a natural and healthy condition, of the scalp, and of the glands through which nourishment is obtained. When, in consequence of age and disease, the hair becomes weak, thin, and gray, Ayer's Hair Vigor will strengthen it, restore its original color, promote its rapid and vigorous growth, and impart to it the lustre and freshness of youth.
I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a long time, and am convinced of its value. When I was 17 years of age my hair began to turn gray. I commenced using the Vigor, and was surprised at the good effects it produced. It not only restored the color to my hair, but so stimulated its growth, that I have now more hair than ever before.—J. W. Edwards, Coldwater, Miss.

The Loyal Protest.

The indignant protest of the loyal people of the country against the scandalous proposition to surrender the flags bought by the blood of the Nation's defenders, is as prompt and emphatic as was predicted by the WHIG AND COURIER when it denounced the outrage on Monday morning last.

The more one thinks of it the more monstrous does the outrage reveal itself, and it is hard to conceive how any reasonable person could have entertained a purpose so shocking to every sense of patriotism and so absolutely uncalled-for and inexcusable.

We are glad to see that the magnificently loyal West has so promptly and thoroughly aroused at the threatened abasement of the National dignity and insult to the soldiers of the Union, and the protest of thirty-nine thousand Ohio veterans, is echoed by comrades throughout the land.

A Washington despatch says: "Senator Manderson, of Nebraska, a wounded ex-Union soldier, who is here, represents the indignation of all ex-Union soldiers at the order restoring the rebel flags in this statement: 'My answer is: I have a bullet in my body which I have carried since the war. I ought now to have that dug out and sent back.'"

The ringing words of the one-armed Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic are given in our telegraphic columns, and he applies the touch-stone to this whole, hypocritical, shameful performance, when he asks: "How can the present loyal Governors of the Southern States accept the emblems of treason after their profession of loyalty to the Union?"

Truly we have fallen upon strange times, when the National Administration spends a large part of its time turning Union soldiers out of office, and shows its sympathies by offering to send back to the South the flags that were taken from the armed legions of rebellion. This is certainly very like a Copperhead Millennium, when disloyal sheets such as were suppressed by popular indignation during the war, make bold to fill their columns with contemptuous jibes at Union veterans, while exulting in big head-lines over the parading of ex-Confederate soldiers in the livery of the Lost Cause through the streets of Boston.

If anything more grotesque or incongruous can be conceived than the manner in which the hospitable folks of the Hub seek to sandwich together Rebellion and Loyalty; Integrity and Recreancy; the memory of a great New England patriot with that of a soldier who turned his sword against the country that taught him at its own expense how to use it, we should like to compare it with the following paragraph from a Boston paper:

> The committee on badges of Post 15 has adopted a very appropriate device, which is to be printed on white satin ribbon ornamented with gold fringe. It contains portraits of John A. Andrew and Robert E. Lee, side by side, with suitable inscriptions, above and below.

The N. Y. Tribune's Washington special of Tuesday says the report of the intention to return the Rebel battle-flags was hardly credited until the Adjutant General's gushing letter appeared, and that "it has caused more indignation among Union veterans than anything that has happened in years." In reply to inquiries the Adjutant General expressed the remarkable opinion: "It is not proper for the Government to preserve as trophies the flags captured in internecine strife," and he declared that the Rebel flags now in possession of the loyal States "must be returned also." The correspondent says:

NO AUTHORITY FOR SUCH ACTION.

General Drum did not seem to realize that this action will only make it more clear that the design of the order is to wipe out as far as practicable the distinction between the Stars and Stripes and the Stars and Bars. The rebels were defeated—while they were in arms; they were "enemies of the United States." Section No. 218 of the Revised Statutes requires the Secretary of War to cause to be transmitted to him all "flags, colors and standards captured from enemies of the United States." Section No. 217 makes him the custodian of "all the books, records, papers, furniture, pictures and other property appertaining to the department." He has no right to dispose of any of the property in his custody except by authority given to him by Congress. No longer ago than last year it was regarded as necessary that Congress should pass a joint resolution before the Governor of North Carolina could be furnished with certified copies of "the official letter-books of the Executive Department of North Carolina, now in the War Department." The rebel flags went into the custody of the Secretary of War by virtue of an act of Congress. Nothing less than an act of Congress can lawfully remove them from his custody.

UNION VETERAN'S CLAIMS DELAYED.

Although it has been rather difficult for Union veterans to obtain a glimpse of the captured rebel flags since "the Confederates captured the Capital," there is reason to believe that they number about 545. They are stored in an attic room of the War Department, the door of which is kept locked, so that the sensibilities of Southern Democrats may not be shocked by a public display of emblems which show that the "loyal cause" was regarded as lost indeed at one time. For years officers of the War Department have complained that the clerical force was inadequate to furnish promptly the data necessary for the settlement of the claims of Union veterans and their widows and orphans on account of pensions, back-pay, bounties, etc.; and yet it has been found practicable, since Congress adjourned, to detail men to prepare lists of the captured rebel flags, to write full histories of 150 of them and partial histories of 150 more. About 250 are ready to be shipped. Among them are the flags which floated over Fort Moultrie and the citadel of Charleston.

EXPRESSIONS OF INDIGNATION.

An officer who has spent forty years in his country's service, to-day said: "I do not understand this. I suppose Cleveland can get the nomination anyway, and of course, if he is nominated the South will support him. It hardly seemed worth while to insult every man who fought for the Union."

An old army officer remarked: "Well, you know, neither Mr. Cleveland nor Mr. Endicott exactly appreciate the significance of a flag. I presume that the Stars and Stripes seem to be nothing more than a few yards of bunting or silk to either of them. The Stars and Stripes and Stars and Bars are about the same to them."

A man who served long in the Navy said "This Administration has begun where Buchanan's left off. Our ships were scattered in remote seas and our arms sent to Southern arsenals in 1860. In 1887 the flags that we captured from the rebels are returned to them. It is the same old party after all."

Among members of the Grand Army who were seen to-day, the feeling is bitter in the extreme, and it probably will result in some official expression at the National Encampment.

New Jersey Republicans.

The New Jersey Republicans are wide awake and organizing for the battles to come. On Monday evening last the Republican Club of Camden gave a house-warming in their elegant new club house, and there was a notable gathering on the occasion. Among the principal speakers was Hon. William Walter Phelps, who said, among other good things, the following:

"But although we have done so much in the past, there is more for us to do yet. We must do something to restore the purity of the ballot. It is only in the purity of the ballot that lies the security of our institutions. The majority is bound to rule and if it can not get control by the ballot it will by the sword. This is why we must have it and the people must know that they have it. We are not going to have it out of pity for the colored man, but because we want it for ourselves. I am not going to have a man in Charleston who loves his country no better, or serves her no more heartily than I, have three votes for my one. In South Carolina 10,000 votes make a congressman while it takes 32,000 in New Jersey, and 34,000 in Ohio. This is not waving the bloody shirt, but a simple reiteration of the law that the majority must rule.

"We must also take care of the tariff question ourselves. If it needs to be amended and improved, it must be amended and improved by the Republican party, not by Democrats who fought against it. We must improve it in the line of protection for the benefit of the working man. This means to improve it in the interest of capital and the Government.

"Then there is the surplus. It was a grand thing for the Republican party that it reduced Democratic loans at 12 per cent at the opening of the war, and did what no other nation ever did before—float a national loan at par at 3 per cent—but this surplus exists in the treasury in money it takes it away from business. This must be reduced. The Democratic party has not done it, and it does not want to. If this is to be done, it must be like everything else great which has been done in the last quarter of a century—by the Republican party. I do not propose to tell you how it is to be done, but why won't they let us take some of this and build up our mercantile marine?

England stands first in the commerce of the world, having given $240,000,000 to her commerce and she now holds 42 per cent of the commerce of the world. She carries 15,000,000 tons of our merchandise. She is not alone in her belief in a generous policy. Germany has contributed $1,100,000 to her commerce, and France has followed in her tracks. We, to-day, need the business of South America but we cannot get from the Democrats the grant of a single subsidy.

Ex-Senator Sewell, who gallantly commanded a New Jersey Brigade against the Rebellion, also made an earnest speech:

"He referred to the tampering with the ballots as done by the vilest creatures on earth. He also thought that honesty was as much required in politics as in church and family. He referred to the coming Confederate and Union gathering at Gettysburg as an acknowledgement of our cause as wrong, and the President's order to return the flags bought with blood, as an outrage that he would have none of. He penetrated as far into the Confederate lines as any other, and he was not going to return any flags that he took."

Senator Chandler.

[Concord Monitor.]

Without regard to individual preferences or personal prejudices, every Republican in the State must rejoice that Mr. Chandler, having been fairly and honorably nominated in the Republican Senatorial caucus, has been elected by the full vote of his party in the Legislature. The will of an undoubted majority of the Republicans of New Hampshire, as indicated by the action and vote of their Senators and Representatives in their caucus, has been respected and obeyed. It is this fact which gives the election its real value. It is this important truth which overshadows all considerations of a merely personal nature. The choice happened to fall upon Mr. Chandler. It might with equal propriety have fallen upon some other leader. But the fact that it was he, and not another, who was preferred by a majority of his party, justified his nomination and called for his election. It is the unanimous opinion of the Republicans with whom we have conversed that not in many a year has a Senatorial election been followed by more general good feeling. This is due less to personal consideration than to the happy conditions of the election itself. Everybody feels that justice has been done. Nobody has been ill treated. The canvass has been unusually free from bitterness. With a few trifling exceptions, there has been no abuse, no vituperation, no crimination and recrimination. The Republicans throughout the State have realized in order to be strong they must be united.

Their representatives in the Legislature have shown an admirable discretion in meeting and dealing with questions which, if injudiciously treated, might easily have led to the most unfortunate results. The spirit of mutual forbearance and concession, the desire for harmony and the willingness to subordinate all personal wishes and views to the party will and the party good which the Republican legislators and the Republican leaders in general have displayed at this juncture, cannot be commended too highly. Nor can the significance of such action be mistaken. It is a happy augury of future successes. It affords the best possible proof of unbroken party unity and undiminished party vitality. It presents new evidence that the Republicans of New Hampshire still deserve the distinction long ago accorded them of having the stanchest and most reliable political organization in the country, and that they may be counted upon to do their whole duty in the great contest of next year, which shall result in the retirement of the national Democratic party into another quarter of a century of well merited oblivion.

What They Call Honest Reform.

[Philadelphia Press.]

The Democrats of Kentucky in their State platform made a month ago declared for "honest civil service reform." Beyond the perfectly well understood fact that this was intended to express the feeling of the Democrats of that State that President Cleveland's kind of civil service reform is not the honest kind, it was pretty difficult to tell just what was meant by the declaration. The Kentuckians did not go on to show what, in their view, honest civil service reform is; they merely contented themselves by indicating what they thought was not honest reform in an undertone expression of contempt for the Cleveland kind.

Senator Vance, of North Carolina, has done better, however. Like his Democratic brethren in Kentucky, he has declared for honest civil service reform, but, unlike them, he tells with heroic bluntness what that sort of reform is in his estimation. It is that reform which consists in turning out Republican officials and putting Democrats in their places. This is the honest civil service reform which the Democrats of Kentucky want; it is the kind the Democrats of the whole country are after, and the last Democratic National Convention had just this in mind when it pronounced in favor of honest civil service reform. It was, as Senator Vance shows, merely a cautious way of inviting the victors to a feast on the spoils.

But it is difficult to see why these Democrats who are so bound up in honest civil service reform should complain against the President. He has certainly done about as much as he could do to show that his interpretation of the platform is the same as theirs. The spoils have been going to the victors with such steady purpose as to invite the severe criticism of those people who really believed that honest civil service reform meant something else. They have watched with peculiar emotions the way in which, under the President's idea of honest civil service reform, experienced Republican officials who could not be accused of partisan activity have been compelled to surrender their office to Democratic politicians and wire-pullers. Changes which have occurred in some of the federal offices in this city and their results show that President Cleveland and Senator Vance have really the same understanding of honest civil service reform.

With all this we may expect the claptrap declaration to be repeated at the next Democratic National Convention. It will serve a purpose, just as did the bait used by the President while fishing in the Saranac woods. Those will bite who have not found out the trick. But Mr. Cleveland, who had fished there before, didn't have anywhere near as good luck when he tried it again.

Stealing a State.

The following statement, published by the joint caucus of the Republican members of the Florida Legislature, ought to open the eyes of people who believe in popular government:

"By the action of the Florida Legislature, June 3, the last day of the session, a bill was railroaded through the House of Representatives which was entitled an 'Election Law,' and which effectually wipes out of existence all semblance of fairness, and places in the hands of the Governor full control of the election machinery, by vesting in him the appointment of officers called Supervisors, who are virtually empowered to say who shall vote. It is needless to say that thousands of Republicans will be denied that right. The Republican members, though denied the right to have the bill read while on its second reading, endeavored to amend it into something like a law intended to act equally for the protection of all the citizens of the State. The spirit in which their amendments were received is shown by the action of the majority upon an amendment offered by a Republican member, Mr. Mitchell, of Leon county. This gentleman moved to amend as follows: 'That said County Commissioners shall appoint such Inspectors of Elections as can both read and write. Any violation of this section shall subject the members of said board to a fine of five hundred dollars or imprisonment in the county jail for a period of one year.' This, on call of the roll, was voted down, not a Democratic member hesitating to vote against its adoption. By every unfair means—the Speaker even going so far as to arbitrarily decide that amendments were out of order—the bill was put through. By its passage the four electoral votes of the State are already stolen and over 30,000 voters practically denied the rights of citizenship, and the State is lost and the suppression of even a few hundred Republican votes will secure the continuance of Democratic misrule."

Reports of visitors to the Medical Schools of Maine and Portland were referred by vote to the committee on publication. After the customary vote of thanks the Association adjourned.

FARMINGTON NORMAL SCHOOL.

The Closing Graduation Exercises.

FARMINGTON, June 15. The closing exercises of the Farmington State Normal School are occurring to-day. Last evening Prof. H. L. Chapman delivered a very interesting address before the graduating classes in the Unitarian church which was filled to overflowing. This morning was occupied at the school room with teaching exercises and examination of the class of 1887. This afternoon the examination of the Advanced class took place by State Superintendent Luce and trustees. This evening graduating exercises occur in Music Hall, with music by the Farmington Orchestra. Among the dignitaries present are Messrs. Wood, Lord and Warren of the Governor's Council.

Music Hall was full to overflowing to listen to the graduating exercises of the class of 1887. The stage was prettily decorated with flowers and music was furnished by the Farmington Orchestra. Following is the programme: Music; prayer; salutatory, "Know thy work and do it," Lena J. Norton, Farmington; essay, "The ...," Minnie L. Rice, Livermore Centre; essay, "To-day," Alice M. Whitney, Augusta; essay, "History of a pebble," Addie Bartlett, East Dixfield; music; oration, "the triumphs of steam," Abner Ridlon, Rangeley; essay, "Joan of Arc," Kate M. Lynch, Lewiston; essay, "A day in Venice," Henrietta H. Johnson, Winthrop Center; essay, "The influence of organic elements in the formation of character, compared with habit," Fannie S. Belcher, Farmington; music; oration, "The teacher's position in society," F. M. Butler, Phillips; essay, "Fair words gladden many a heart," Ardell Tobier, Easton (excused); essay, "The history of Narcissus," Nellie A. Skinner, Port Clyde; oration, "Luck or Pluck," Albert V. Andrews, Augusta; class history, Maude V. Brackett, Auburn; valedictory, "Not in our stars but in ourselves," Lillian F. Ellis, Canton Point; music; advanced class oration, "Means of self culture," James S. Norton, Farmington; essay, "Moral architecture," L. Maria Knight, North Waterford, (excused); essay, "The power of the invisible," Jennie M. Thorne, Wayne; conferring of diplomas by State Superintendent Luce; singing of class ode; benediction.

The graduates number seven in the advanced course, and thirty-seven in the regular course. At a meeting of the trustees Mrs. F. E. Warner's resignation as teacher of the model school was accepted and Miss Julia W. Swift, of New Vineyard, was elected to fill the vacancy. The other teachers were reelected and Miss Ardelle Tobier, of Easton, was elected an additional teacher.

PORTLAND YACHT CLUB.

The Spring Regatta Held Yesterday.

PORTLAND, June 16. The spring regatta of the Portland Yacht Club took place to-day. Four yachts of the second class started, the Warren, owned by J. Warren Frye, the Willie, by J. G. Stubbs, the Marie, by George A. White, and the Millie, by E. S. Paul. The Warren carried away her topmast at the start but proceeded. The course is 18 miles.

The Millie the Winner.

Yacht Millie won to-day's regatta. Corrected time 2 hours, 51 minutes. Yacht Willie second, time 3 hours 2 minutes.

FROM AUGUSTA.

Graduation at St. Catherine's Hall.

AUGUSTA, June 16. The closing exercises at St. Catherine's Hall (Episcopal) occurred to-day. There were seven young lady graduates. The school has been unusually prosperous the past year with over fifty pupils.

FROM SACCARAPPA.

A Woman Prevented from Committing Suicide.

SACCARAPPA, June 16. The body of a woman about sixty years old was discovered floating in the Presumpscot river near the mill of the Westbrook Manufacturing Co. here this afternoon. Investigation proved the person to be Mrs. C. J. Towle, wife of a prominent citizen of this place. She was immediately rescued and was conscious when taken from the water and was not apparently injured. She has been seen going toward the river a short time previous to the discovery. It is supposed that she attempted suicide by drowning while suffering from an attack of mental aberration, caused by recent illness.

MAINE CONGREGATIONALISTS.

Doings at Yesterday's Session.

AUGUSTA, June 16. At the session of the Maine Congregational Conference this forenoon the "Work of the church among our young people" was discussed. The first division, "What are we doing," was opened by a paper from Rev. W. Forsyth, of Bucksport, discussion followed; on the second division of the topic Prof. C. J. H. Ropes, of Bangor Theological Seminary, read a paper on "Amusement," which created no little excitement in the Conference. He held that playing cards and billiards, dancing and theatre going were admissable under proper circumstances and restriction.

Dea. W. P. Hubbard of Bangor, was chosen moderator for the ensuing year. The Committee on Nominations reported: Treasurer, Dea. J. S. Wheelwright, of Bangor; Dea. W. S. Dennett, Delegate to corresponding bodies and visitor to Educational Institutions. The next meeting of the Conference will be held on Tuesday preceding the third Wednesday in June, 1888, at Waterville.

The Conference adjourned sine die at 3 P. M., to-day, after an address by Rev. F. T. Bagley, of Portland, and communion service. The committee has not agreed on the place for the next meeting. Waterville and other places are being considered.

WOBURN, Mass, June 16. The currying shop of C. J. Bishop & Co., of Cummingsville, was burned this morning, also a tan shed, mowing machine and other miscellaneous property. C. J. Bishop & Co. are engaged in the manufacture of calf skins and employ some 100 hands. Loss on property and machinery probably about $16,000; on stock, $22,000. There was $10,000 insurance on the building and machinery and $17,000 on the stock.

THE WHEAT MARKET.

Matters Assuming a More Settled Appearance.

CHICAGO, 11 A. M., June 16. It is generally conceded that every thing depends on Kershaw's action. Some members of the board are of the opinion that he will pull through all right, but a majority are very doubtful on the subject. Scarcely any trading is being done and prices are barely fluctuating at slight fractions. There are rumors of impending failures but everything awaits the announcement to be made by Kershaw. In the meantime business is practically at a stand still. July wheat opened at 73 and has fluctuated between that figure and 72⅞.

Beginning to Resume Confidence.

(Noon.)—T. H. Belding & Co., who suspended yesterday and then announced their solvency, have again requested that their trades be closed out. The official report of the clearing house is very late in coming in but it is said on the floor that everybody went through the house all right and members were already beginning to gather in the wheat pit. July wheat has advanced to 73⅛.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

General Encampment of the Sons of Veterans.

NASHUA, June 16. The general encampment of the Sons of Veterans of the State commenced its sessions at the G. A. R. Hall in this city, at eleven o'clock, with a large delegation present. But little business aside from that of a routine character took place at the morning session, when adjournment took place until two o'clock.

LABOR MATTERS.

THOSE REBEL BATTLE FLAGS.

The Opposition to Their Return General.

Commander-in-Chief Fairchild Vigorously Denounces the Proposed Action.

The President Countermands the Order to Return the Flags.

WASHINGTON, June 16. As stated on Sunday last it has been determined, upon the recommendation of Adjutant General Drum, of the army, to return to the Southern States all their flags, standards and colors which were captured by the Union army during the war.

Gen. Drum, when asked if the President expressed his approval of this proposition in writing, did not give a direct answer, but intimated that when the list of flags returned and their histories were given to the public a letter from the President on the subject might also be made public.

The Adjutant General Asserts

that there is nothing in the statutes which could be construed as a bar to the action. The legal points in the case were carefully considered before Gen. Drum submitted his recommendation and the President, it is said, was fully satisfied before issuing the authority to make the return that there was nothing illegal in the action. The flags number nearly 300, and all show signs of the ravages of war; and many are so riddled that it will be difficult to determine to what regiments or States they belonged.

Considerable Excitement was Occasioned

here to-day by the action of General H. V. Boynton, who, at 12 o'clock, proceeded to City Hall to carry out the instructions received last night from Governor Foraker, of Ohio, to institute proceedings to enjoin the return of the rebel flags which were captured by Ohio troops. The proposed return of the flags is the all-absorbing topic of discussion in public places.

Vigorous Denunciation by Commander-in-Chief Fairchild.

NEW YORK, June 16. At a reception given to Commander-in-Chief Fairchild of the G. A. R., last night, by Hamilton Post 182, Gen. Fairchild, in denouncing the action of President Cleveland in sanctioning the return of the rebel battle flags to the Southern States, said: "May God palsy the hand that wrote the order; may God palsy the brain that conceived it, and may God palsy the tongue that dictated it." Much excitement prevailed and indignation at the order of the War Department was expressed on every hand.

Continuing, Gen. Fairchild said: "How can the present loyal Governors of the Southern States accept the emblems of treason after their professions of loyalty to the Union? Must they not return them to the Secretary of War and say that they have nothing to do with the flags as the rebel organizations are extinct?"

Resolutions were adopted protesting against the action of the President in approving the order for the restoration of the flags and declaring that no sentiment of generosity and no expression of magnanimity on the part of the G. A. R. is involved in the surrender of these trophies to the Southern States.

The gathering of veterans was a representative one, delegates being present from every Grand Army Post of the city and vicinity.

Iowa's Protest Against the Action.

To the President of the United States, Washington, D. C.:

I send herewith a request made upon me as Governor of Iowa by the commander of the Grand Army of the Republic in this State against the return to the South of the war flags captured by Union troops during the rebellion. I add to this request and protest of the surviving Union soldiers in Iowa, the respectful, but equally urgent protest of the people of the State and shall deem it my duty to use all proper endeavor to prevent any such return of the battle flags captured by Iowa troops.

What the Soldier Boys Say.

CINCINNATI, June 16. The Commercial Gazette has a page of interviews with Ex-Union soldiers of Ohio, deprecating in strong language the proposed return of the Confederate flags.

Excusing an Unexcusable Act.

The Post, in an article on the removal of the battle flags says the proposition originated with Gen. Drum, who has all these trophies under his own care. The Adjutant General, while admitting that the request to return the captured colors might not have come so gracefully from a Southern State as from a Northern State, gives the Southern States credit for having acted in the matter with perfect sense and propriety and an appreciation of the delicacy of the subject, viewed from a certain standpoint. No Southern State which took a rebellious part in the war has ever presumed to ask for the return of the flags. In these circumstances, and all things considered, the Adjutant General thinks the President has done a graceful and patriotic act.

The Cabinet Responsible.

The Critic says: "The collection of flags in the War Department is under the charge of Adjutant-General Drum. From time to time several have been returned to northern military organizations. Recently General Drum recommended that all be returned. Secretary Endicott suggested this at a Cabinet meeting and it was agreed to."

Prompt Action of Ohio.

General Boynton, acting for Governor Foraker, of Ohio, has engaged the services of ex-Governor Boutwell and Judge Shellabarger, to enter legal proceedings to prevent the War Department from returning the Confederate battle flags to the Southern States.

Another Grand Army Post Protests.

WORCESTER, Mass, June 16. Post 10, G. A. R., to-night adopted resolutions earnestly protesting against the return of the rebel battle flags.

More Denunciation of the Outrage.

NEW HAVEN, June 16. The Grand Army Posts united here in a monster camp fire this evening, in honor of the Soldiers' Monument which is to be dedicated to-morrow. Many distinguished military gentlemen are in attendance from over the whole country. During the evening speeches were made bearing upon the President's probable return of the Confederate flags. The tone of the speeches was severely condemnatory of any such action and it was said that the Grand Army of the whole country would unite in one voice in not countenancing such action.

Gov. Lounsbury said he should enter a vigorous protest against the removal of any flags at the capitol at Hartford and the State would never consent to their removal.

General Sherman was given a rousing reception. He acknowledged the greeting but excused himself from speaking.

The President Countermands the Order to Return the Flags.

Senator Hawley then interrupted the proceedings and read a despatch stating that the President has countermanded the order in relation to the return of the Confederate flags. The speakers were, Terry, Sheridan, Hawley, Greely, Grant, Chamberlain, Clay, Trumbull, York, Gen. Carrington and Department Chaplain Rev. Dr. Edward Anderson.

The boat will then proceed to Islesboro and Northport, and arrive home at an early hour in the evening. Fare fifty cents for the round trip.

Yesterday forenoon Scott Estes received a very bad fall. He was sitting upon the front seat of a hack which was waiting for a train at the Maine Central depot, and in some way lost his balance falling over sidewise and striking his head upon one of the forward wheels. His head was quite badly cut and he received some painful bruises. He was taken to his home and a physician attended him.

HAPPY ANGLERS. Several gentlemen intimately connected with the science of medicine, went a fishing yesterday afternoon and met with most remarkable luck. The quantity of fish caught was exceeded only by the variety, and it is understood that a museum of natural history is about to be opened with yesterday's catch as a most important nucleus. When the fish are classified and their proper names attached, we may be better able to give full credit to the skill of our medical gentlemen.

VESSEL ARRIVALS. The recent vessel arrivals in this port are the following: William E. Leggett, with 775 barrels of flour for Charles Hayward & Co.; John P. Ober with a general cargo for transhipment over the Maine Central; Abbie Wasson, with a general cargo; Richmond, with 6,000 bushels of oats for A. L. Hopkins; Mary Willey, with a cargo of corn for J. MAINE CENTRAL INSTITUTE. The meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Maine Central Institute at Pittsfield occurred last Wednesday evening and the following were chosen officers of the Institute: Principal, Prof. Kingsbury Bachelder, now Professor of Latin in Hillsdale College; Prof. P. F. Drake was retained in his present position; Preceptress, Miss Angie E. Hanson; Assistant, Miss A. May Drake. The graduating exercises of the Senior class occurred Wednesday and passed off most pleasantly. Rev. A. W. Anthony, of this city, was among those in attendance.

THE KING PHILLIP. The four-masted schooner King Phillip was towed into this port Wednesday evening and is now at High Head, where she will remain until the Annie E. Kranz is fully discharged at the Maine Central wharf, when she will move up and take her place. The King Phillip has a cargo of 1,800 tons of coal for the Maine Central from Norfolk, this being the largest cargo ever brought into this city. The schooner was built last year at Camden and many descriptions were written of her at the time. She is one of the finest schooners afloat.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE. Yesterday forenoon a man named Jerry Mahoney, who hails from Lewiston, walked down the Washington street slip and coolly jumped from the wharf into the Kenduskeag stream, evidently with the intention of putting an end to his life. Some men who happened to be rowing by saw him jump, and went to the rescue. They got him into the boat and went across the stream to the slip at Whitney's carriage repository, where he was delivered to the police and locked up. He appears to be demented and says that he will not go back to Lewiston alive.

PATRIARCHS MILITANT. Bangor Canton, Patriarchs Militant, will have an important session to-morrow evening at their hall. There will be a number of visitors from abroad, among them Lieutenant General J. C. Underwood, of Kentucky, Lieutenant General Woodbury, of Auburn, Colonel Sprague and staff of Lewiston. After the business session supper will be served at the Windsor Hotel. Sunday morning members of the Canton and the visitors will make a trip to Bar Harbor, where they will remain two or three days. The boat will be taken for Portland and the visiting Patriarchs will leave for their homes. The occasion will undoubtedly be a most pleasant one and the guests of the Bangor Canton will be given a hearty welcome here.

ILLNESS OF GENERAL MANAGER TUCKER. General Manager Tucker whose illness was announced in yesterday's WHIG, passed through the city yesterday noon in his private car on his way to Portland. Mr. Tucker appeared to have recovered from his illness and took dinner at the Maine Central restaurant. Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Tucker with a party of gentlemen drove out a number of miles from Bar Harbor to examine some land and walked some distance while making the examination. It was quite cool, on the way back and Mr. Tucker, who had left his overcoat at the hotel, took a severe chill. The results were only those which would naturally follow a chill and nothing of a serious nature followed.

PARLOR TEMPERANCE MEETING. The parlor temperance meeting at the residence of Mrs. Whitman last evening was a complete success and the pleasant parlors were filled with an interested company. The programme opened with religious exercises, reading the scriptures and prayer. A summary of the work of the W. C. T. U. was then given. Miss Semple sang a solo, "Hunting four-leaved clover". Miss Semple and Mrs. Smart sang a duet. Miss Sadie Brown rendered two selections very finely, they being "Light from over the Range," and "Echo and the Ferry." Then followed refreshments of cake and coffee. Not the least interesting part of the entertainment was the unexpected appearance of the harpist and the sweet strains of his instrument with which the happy company broke up.

CRAZY TEA AND ENTERTAINMENT. The crazy tea and entertainment given last evening at the Essex street church vestry was a very pleasant affair and the evening was a most enjoyable one to all present. The attendance was very good considering the uncertainty of the weather. Supper was served from six to eight o'clock by young lady waiters arrayed in costumes with an insane arrangement of colors, while the dainties which they brought to the expectant guests in dust pans for waiters, were served in a most curious fashion. One person's ice cream would come in a bowl, another's in a butter plate, the sugar bowl would be filled with salt, the cake brought in in all sorts of dishes, and so on with all the eatables. After supper an entertainment was given and the following was the programme: Piano solo, Miss Harriman; human-phone; recitation, "Sheridan's Ride," Mr. Gowen; recitation, "Out of the Depths," Mr. Lea; humaniphone; quartette, "Over the Glassy Ocean." The concert passed off very finely, all of the selections being given in a manner which gave much pleasure. The humaniphone was an interesting feature of the programme. It consisted of eight masked persons behind a screen at one end of which was a crank and at the other the tremolo stop. Each person had a note of music and upon being tapped upon the head by the baton of the leader, gave it. A number of pieces were given in this way and the effect was very amusing. The tea and entertainment, with a different programme, will be repeated next Tuesday evening.

An excursion and festival at Verona Park is announced for the Fourth of July, under the auspices of members of the Patrons of Husbandry.

Those who attend the game this afternoon at Maplewood between the Bowdoin-Colby consolidated team and the Bangors, will probably witness a closely played and interesting game, as the team that the visitors will bring includes the strongest players on the college teams and the game will undoubtedly be played for all it is worth. The Bangors will present a strong team, and with Leahy and Purington as the battery, a good game may be expected. The game with Colby for to-morrow will not be played as that team is not in condition.

THE BOSTON BOATS. The steamer Gloucester will make her last trip from this city to Boston to-day and will then be taken from her present route and go on her former route, between Boston and Gloucester. She has been doing good service while on this line, and although she has taken but few passengers on account of not having suitable accomodations, she has proven herself an excellent freight boat and had a great deal of it to carry. The steamer Lewiston will begin running on the line between this city and Boston one week from next Monday. A new shaft has been put into the steamer and the finishing touches are now being made. She will be in excellent trim for the season's work.

Our Own Folks and Other Folks.

Miss Abbie Low is visiting friends in Brunswick.

Mr. Samuel Sterns is in New York on a business trip.

Dr. Sweat, physician for the Canadian Pacific and other roads, was in the city last night.

Hon. E. C. Goodwin, of Calais, passed through this city last evening on his way to Boston.

Mrs. E. H. Bradbury, of St. Louis, Mo., is in the city visiting her father, Ebenezer Trask, Esq.

Mr. A. R. Macdonell, of Lincoln, contractor for the Canadian Pacific, was in the city yesterday.

Mr. B. I. Weeks of the American Express Company, was in Camden yesterday on a business trip.

Miss Rena Webster and Miss Ladd, of this city, are expected home from Wellesley next Wednesday.

D. M. Gardner, Esq., proprietor of the Border City Hotel, Calais, was in the city yesterday and left in the evening for Portland.

Mrs. E. F. Campbell and family, of New York, were at the Bangor House last night. They leave this morning for Bar Harbor to occupy their cottage at that place.

Messrs. M. B. and B. D. Sullivan, of Dover, N. H., and James J. Christie, of Washington, D. C., were in the city last night. They have been in Bar Harbor a few days and return home to-day.

Mr. D. W. Whipple, who has been attending school at Middletown, Conn., has returned to this city and will study medicine with Dr. Gibson, preparatory to entering the University of New York.

THE REBEL BATTLE FLAGS.

Resolutions of Protest Adopted by Post Beale, G. A. R.

At the regular meeting of Post B. H. Beale, No. 12, G. A. R., last evening, comrade H. R. Cowan introduced the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted.

Whereas, the Adjutant General of the Army of the United States has written to the Governors of Virginia and other Southern States, lately in rebellion, offering to return the battle flags captured by the United States Army from Confederate troops during the late rebellion, and

Whereas, The flags in question are not the property of the officers of the United States Government, but are left in their custody for safe keeping, therefore

Resolved, That we, as ex-soldiers, protest against the return of the flags or their removal from the custody of the United States Government for any purpose whatever.

Resolved, That the offer to return them is an insult to every old Union soldier, and to the United States Army as a whole, who have entrusted the officers of the Government with these trophies of their valor, believing that the trust would be held sacred.

Decision at Law.

The following decision at law has been received by Charles F. Sweet, Esq., Clerk of the Eastern Law District:

PENOBSCOT CASE.

John F. Woodman vs Woodman C. Pitman and als.

Rescript—Neither the right of travelling upon the ice of a river, affected by the tide, nor the right of taking ice therefrom, is an absolute property right in any person. Both are natural or common rights belonging to the people generally.

Though such rights are theoretically open to all—are for the equal enjoyment of all—those persons who first take possession of them are entitled to their enjoyment without interference from other persons; such rights are the subjects of qualified property by occupation.

Each right is relative or comparative, when conflicting with the exercise of the other right, to be itself exercised reasonably; and what would be a reasonable exercise of the one or the other, at any particular place, must depend largely upon the benefits which the people at large are to receive therefrom.

These and all other public rights, and the relation that shall subsist between them, may be regulated by the Legislature as a trustee of the rights of the people.

In the absence of legislative regulation of conflicting public interests, such matters necessarily become the subjects of judicial interpretation; the scope of the judicial, though less than the legislative, authority permitting courts to determine the manner in which such public privileges may be best enjoyed by the public, provided that any judicial regulation shall do no violence to existing legal principles.

The law is constantly subject to gradual growth and development, and when, in the ever changing conditions and relations of society, new questions arise, it has within itself elastic and creative force enough to adapt itself to such questions.

The general right of travelling on the ice in all parts of our public rivers is not invested with the same degree of importance as that which attaches to the right of passage for vessels in navigable waters; is a less dominant right; and is the superior right or not according to circumstances of place and situation.

The right of passage over the ice for general travel is not the paramount right at such a place as the Penobscot river at Bangor, and for some distance below, where the great body of the ice is annually taken from the river, for the purposes of trade both domestic and foreign, constituting an enterprise of vast value to the public at large, and the traveler is there provided with a passage over roads on the banks of the river, and at ferries across the river, at the public expense; the traveler's privilege at such place being of trifling consequence, compared with other interests conflicting with it and beset with difficulty and danger during the ice cutting season.

Those who appropriate to their use portions of a public river for ice fields, should guard their occupation, after they have been cut into, so as not to expose to danger any persons who may be lawfully or innocently intrude upon the fields.

Although a defendant may have been in fault in leaving an ice-field unprotected against accident, a plaintiff who afterwards got injured at such place, cannot recover, if he had a clear opportunity of avoiding the accident, notwithstanding the negligence of his opponent. In a legal sense the plaintiff's negligence is the controlling cause of the accident, and the defendant's act does not even contribute to it.

"Motion sustained."

C. P. Stetson for plaintiff.

Wilson & Woodard for defendant.

EPPS'S COCOA.
BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame. Civil Service Gazette.

To William T. Pearson Esq. President of the Penobscot Central Railroad Company.

DEAR SIR—At a meeting of the remaining directors of the Penobscot Central Railroad Company, held at the office of William T. Pearson, in Bangor, on the seventh day of June, A. D. 1887, it was voted to direct the President of said railroad company to call a special meeting of the corporators thereof, to be held at the Penobscot Exchange, in said Bangor, on Saturday, the twenty-fifth day of June, A. D., 1887, at eleven of the clock in the forenoon, to act upon the following articles, viz:

Article 1. To choose a moderator to preside.

Article 2. To see if the corporators will accept the amendments to the original charter granted said company by the Legislature of Maine, entitled "An act to incorporate the Penobscot Central Railroad Company," and approved February 17, 1872, to wit an act entitled "An act to amend an act to incorporate the Penobscot Central Railroad Company," approved February 3d, 1874; an act entitled "An act to amend chapter 120 of the special laws of 1872, entitled "an act to incorporate the Penobscot Railroad Company," approved February 15, 1878; an act entitled "An act to extend the time for the construction of the Penobscot Central Railroad, approved March 2d, 1883; also an act entitled "an act to amend chapter 120 of the private and special laws of 1872, entitled "An act to incorporate the Penobscot Central Railroad Company, as amended by chapter four hundred and sixteen of the private and special laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-four, and to extend the time for the building of said road," approved March 10th, 1887.

Article 3. To fill all vacancies in the Board of Directors.

Article 4. To see if the corporators will fix the amount of the capital stock.

Article 5. To see what action the corporators will take for the subscriptions of stock.

Article 5. To see what action the corporators will take respecting the construction of its railroad.

Article 6. To see if the corporators will choose a committee to recommend to the next annual meeting any alterations, amendment or revision of the by-laws.

Article 7. To see what action the corporators will take respecting the sale or lease of the Railroad to the Bangor & Piscataquis Railroad Company, before or after completion.

Article 8. To see what action the corporators will take respecting the issuing of bonds and mortgaging the railway to secure the same.

A true copy,
Attest—T. P. BATCHELDER, Clerk.

To the Corporators of the Penobscot Central Railroad Company.

Pursuant to the foregoing vote and direction to me to call a special meeting of the Corporators of the Penobscot Central Railroad Company, you are hereby notified to assemble at the time and place and for the purposes therein named.

Then buy BELL'S SARSAPARILLA. That it is A SPLENDID MEDICINE is proved by the fact that thousands have been benefited by its use. A. W. Pitman of Bangor says: It helped me for Rheumatism more than any other medicine. M. D. Freeland, Houlton, writes: It cured me of lameness and kidney trouble after everything else failed. For the blood and liver it cannot be excelled. Druggists all over Maine speak highly of its merits. Geo. W. Shaw & Co., Druggists, Rochester, N. H., write: We hear good reports from Bell's Sarsaparilla. Wm. Buck & Co., Foxcroft, say: Bell's leads every other Sarsaparilla with us. H. E. Whittier, Hermon, says: It has cured me of Salt Rheum. Mrs. G. W. Harvey, Atkinson, writes: After suffering years with sick headache, Bell's Sarsaparilla cured me. Have not had an attack for two years. Mrs. H. A. Cooper, Springfield, writes: I have been taking Bell's Sarsaparilla, and it has done me a great deal of good. My trouble is with my head and stomach. The above are but samples of hundreds who have found relief with this medicine. Try it at 50 cents per bottle. One-half that of any other kind.

STATE OF MAINE.

PENOBSCOT, SS. Court of Insolvency.

In the case of George E. Woodside, insolvent debtor.

Notice is hereby given that a petition has, on this fifteenth day of June, A. D. 1887, been presented to said Court for said County, by George E. Woodside, of Old Town, in the County of Penobscot, praying that he may be decreed to have a full discharge from all his debts provable under the provisions of chapter seventy of the Revised Statutes of the State of Maine and the amendments thereof, and upon said Petition, it is ordered by said Court that a hearing be had upon the same before said Court, at the Probate Court Room in Bangor, in said County of Penobscot, on Monday, the twenty-seventh day of June, A. D. 1887, at ten o'clock in the forenoon; and that notice thereof be published in the Bangor Daily Whig & Courier, a newspaper published in said County of Penobscot once a week for two successive weeks, the last publication to be three days at least before the day of hearing; and that all creditors who have proved their debts, and other persons interested, may appear at said place and time, and show cause, if any they have, why a discharge should not be granted said Debtor according to the prayer of his petition.

"It Saved My Life"

Is a common expression, often heard from those who have realized, by personal use, the curative powers of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. "I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, believing, as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died from lung troubles.—E. Bragdon, Palestine, Tex.

About six months ago I had a severe Hemorrhage of the Lungs, brought on by a distressing Cough, which deprived me of sleep and rest. I had used various cough balsams and expectorants, without obtaining relief. A friend advised me to try

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

I did so, and am happy to say that it helped me at once. By continued use this medicine cured my cough, and, I am satisfied, saved my life.—Mrs. E. Coburn, 18 Second st., Lowell, Mass.

I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for over a year, and sincerely believe I should have been in my grave, had it not been for this medicine. It has cured me of a dangerous affection of the lungs, for which I had almost despaired of ever finding a remedy.—D. A. McMullen, Windsor, Province of Ontario.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved my life. Two years ago I took a very severe Cold which settled on my lungs. I consulted physicians, and took the remedies they prescribed, but failed to obtain relief until I began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Two bottles of this medicine completely restored my health.—Lizzie M. Allen, West Lancaster, Ohio.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5.

PENOBSCOT BAY

REAL ESTATE CO.

This Company is organized under the laws of the State of Maine, for the purpose of owning and dealing in real estate, in all its branches—giving particular attention to seaside properties.

The property of the Company consists of the spacious and modern Hotel, together with large tracts of land, situated on Long Island, the most beautiful and attractive, as well as the largest island in Penobscot Bay. Also very valuable land interests in large properties on the borders of the Bay and on the Island of Mt. Desert—including some of the most beautiful and desirable shore privileges in the State.

The originators and directors of this Company are practical real estate men. Castine will undoubtedly be the terminus of the Canadian Pacific railroad, and Minneapolis capitalists have already bonded land, on which it is intended to build large grain elevators and storehouses for the Islesboro, where the company owns valuable properties, and which will be within one hour one-half of Bangor, will naturally become a popular resort for Summer tourists.

Wednesday, June 15th, the first issue of 5000 shares of the capital stock at a par value of $5, will be placed upon the market, for the purpose of raising funds for improving the Company's property and to complete the purchase of lands on Long Island, now bonded on favorable terms. This stock will be placed in the hands of F. H. C. Reynolds & Co., Bankers and Brokers, Bangor, Maine, who will receive subscriptions for stock at $5 per share.

That stood upon the hill,
Where you and I our boyhood spent?
Because 'twas home we were content
The ground to till.

Ah, me, how well I recollect
The attic where at night we slept,
And how we heard o'erhead,
The pattering rain come down so light,
And if continued through the night,
Came through upon the bed.

And when there came a rainy day,
How you and I would always stray
Down by the brook,
And trace its windings in and out,
And sometimes you would catch a trout
With a pin hook.

Ah, we were jolly youngsters then,
But now we're old, gray-headed men,
Too old to go a fishing.
I sometimes think, if wishing would
Bring back the days of our boyhood,
I'd quickly do the wishing.

Yes, we were happy in those times
Of which I'm speaking in my rhymes;
Knew naught of wickedness or crimes,
For in those halcyon days,
An honest man was counted worth
More rogues than you could find on earth
No matter if his clothes were poor
And out of style, I'm very sure
His character, and not his coat,
Entitled him to praise.

The girls and women whom we knew
In those old times were good and true,
You might depend upon it;
But things have changed since then, you know,
Since those old times so long ago.
Some girls and women bang their hair,
And some the strangest dresses wear
While others wear a coat and hat,
A standing collar and cravat,
Discarding shawl and bonnet.

In all my wanderings since that day,
Both near at home and far away,
Fortune, I can most truly say—
And tell the truth—
That no such comfort have I found,
With no such happiness been crowned,
Have seen no sight nor heard no sound,
Found no such friends the world around,
Found no such pleasures far nor nigh,
As those enjoyed by you and I
In youth.

I feel an aching at my heart,
That we must live so far apart
In these our later years.
I often think if I could stay
Where I could see you every day,
(I wish you lived across the way),
Life would with me be very gay,
Yes, all too gay for tears.

SHE: A History of Adventure.

BY H. RIDER HAGGARD.

CHAPTER XVIII.

GO, WOMAN!

Then followed a silence for a minute or so, during which She appeared, if one might judge from the almost angelic rapture of her face—for she looked angelic sometimes—to be plunged in a happy ecstasy. Suddenly, however, a new thought struck her, and her expression became the very reverse of angelic.

"Almost had I forgotten," she said, "that woman Ustane. What is she to Kallikrates—his servant, or——?" and she paused, and her voice trembled.

I shrugged my shoulders. "I understand that she is wed to him according to the custom of the Amahagger," I answered; "but I know not."

Her face grew dark as a thunder cloud. Old as she was, Ayesha had not outlived jealousy.

"Then there is an end," she said; "she must die, even now!"

"Nay, nay," I cried, "it would be a wicked crime, and from a crime naught comes but what is evil. For thy own sake do not this deed."

"Is it, then, a crime, O foolish man, to put away that which stands between us and our ends? Then is our life one long crime, my Holly; for day by day we destroy that we may live, since in this world none but the strongest can endure."

But I was deeply anxious to save Ustane, whom I liked and respected, from the dire fate that overshadowed her at the hands of her mighty rival. So I made one more appeal.

"Ayesha," I said, "thou art too subtle for me; but thou thyself hast told me that each man should be a law unto himself and follow the teaching of his heart. Hath thy heart no mercy toward her whose place thou wouldst take? Bethink thee, as thou sayest—though to me the thing is incredible—he whom thou desirest has returned to thee after many years, and but now thou hast, as thou sayest also, wrung him from the jaws of death. Wilt thou celebrate his coming by the murder of one who loved him, and whom perchance he loved—one, at any rate, who saved his life for thee when the spears of thy slaves would have made an end thereof? Thou sayest also that in past days thou didst grievously wrong this man, that with thine own hand thou didst slay him because of the Egyptian Amenartas, whom he loved."

"How knowest thou that, O stranger? How knowest thou that name? I spoke it not to thee," she broke in with a cry, catching at my arm.

"Perchance I dreamed it," I answered; "strange dreams do hover about these caves of Kor. It seems that the dream was, indeed, a shadow of truth. What came to thee of thy mad crime?—two thousand years of waiting, was it not? and now wouldst thou repeat the history? Say what thou wilt, I tell thee that evil will come of it; for to him who doeth, at the least, good breeds good and evil evil, even though in after days out of evil cometh good. Offenses must needs come, but woe to him by whom the offense cometh. So said that Messiah of whom I spoke to thee, and it was truly said. If thou slayest this innocent woman, I say unto thee that thou shalt be accursed, and pluck no fruit from thine ancient tree of love. Also, what thinkest thou? How will this man take thee red handed from the slaughter of her who loved and tended him?"

"As to that," she answered, "I have already answered thee! Had I slain thee as well as her, yet should he love me, Holly, because he could not help himself, any more than thou couldst help dying, if by chance I slew thee, O Holly. And yet may be there is truth in what thou dost say for in some way it presseth on my mind. If it may be, I will spare this woman; for have I not told thee that I am not cruel for the sake of cruelty. I love not to see suffering, or to cause it. Let her come before me—quick, now, before my mood changes" and she hastily covered her face with its gauzy wrapping.

Well pleased to have succeeded even to this extent, I passed out into the passage and called Ustane, whose white garment I caught sight of some yards away, huddled up against one of the earthenware lamps that were placed at intervals along the tunnel. She rose and ran to ward me.

"Is my lord dead? Oh, say not he is dead!" she cried, lifting her noble looking face, all stained as it was with tears, up to me with an air of infinite beseeching that went straight to my heart.

"Nay, he lives," I answered. "She hath saved him. Enter."

She sighed deeply and entered, and fell upon her hands and knees, after the custom of the Amahagger people, in the presence of the dread She.

"Stand," said Ayesha, in her coldest voice, "and come hither."

Ustane obeyed, standing before her with bowed head.

Then came a pause, which she broke.

"Who is this man?" she said, pointing to the sleeping form of Leo.

"The man is my husband," she answered, in a low voice.

"Who gave him to thee for a husband?"

"I took him according to the custom of our country oh, She."

"Thou hast done evil, woman in taking this man, who is a stranger. He is not a man of thine own race, and the custom fails. Listen. Perchance thou didst this thing through ignorance; therefore, woman, do I spare thee, otherwise hadst thou died. Listen again. Go from hence back to thine own place, and never dare to speak to or set thine eyes upon this man again. He is not for thee. Listen a third time. If thou breakest this, my law, that moment thou diest. Go."

But Ustane did not move.

"Go, woman!"

Then she looked up, and I saw that her face was torn with passion.

"Nay, oh, She, I will not go," she answered, in a choked voice. "The man is my husband, and I love him; I love him, and I will not leave him. What right hast thou to make me leave my husband?"

I saw a little quiver pass down Ayesha's frame, and shuddered myself, fearing the worst.

"Be pitiful," I said, in Greek; "it is but nature working."

"I am pitiful," she answered, coldly; "had I not been pitiful, she had been dead even now." Then addressing Ustane: "Woman, I say to thee go, before I destroy thee where thou art!"

"I will not go. He is mine—mine!" she cried, in anguish. "I took him, and I saved his life. Destroy me, then, if thou hast the power. I will not give thee my husband—never—never!"

Ayesha made a movement so swift that I could scarcely follow it, but it seemed to me that she lightly struck the poor girl upon the hair with her hand. I looked at Ustane's head, and then staggered back in horror; for there upon her hair, right across her bronze like tresses, were three finger marks as white as snow. As for the girl herself, she had put her hands to her head, and was looking dazed.

"Great heavens!" I said, perfectly aghast at this dreadful manifestation of inhuman power; but She did but laugh a little.

"Thou thinkest, poor ignorant fool," she said to the bewildered woman, "that I have not power to slay. Stay; there lies a mirror;" and she pointed to Leo's round shaving glass that had been arranged by Job with other things upon his portmanteau. "Give it to this woman, my Holly, and let her see that which lies across her hair, and whether or no I have power to slay."

I picked up the glass and held it before Ustane's eyes. She gazed, then felt at her hair, then gazed again, and then sunk upon the ground with a sort of sob.

"Now wilt thou go, or must I strike a second time?" asked Ayesha, in mockery. "See; I have set my seal upon thee, so that I may know thee till thy hair is all as white as it. If I see thy face here again, be sure, too, that thy bones shall soon be whiter than my mark upon thy hair."

Utterly awed and broken down, the poor creature rose, and, marked with that awful mark, crept from the room, sobbing bitterly.

That night I passed in Leo's room, but he slept through it like the dead, never once stirring.

I slept soundly till morning, when I awoke much refreshed, and got up. At last the hour drew near at which, according to Ayesha, Leo was to awake, and with it came She herself, as usual, veiled.

"Thou shalt see, Holly," she said; "presently shall he awake in his right mind, the fever having left him."

Hardly were the words out of her mouth when Leo turned round and stretched out his arms, yawned, opened his eyes, and perceiving a female form bending over him, threw his arms round her and kissed her, mistaking her, perhaps, for Ustane; because, next minute, he said, in Arabic, "Halloo, Ustane, why have you tied your head up like that? Have you got the toothache?" and then, in English, "I say, I'm awfully hungry. Why, Job, you old son of a gun, where the deuce have we got to now—eh?"

"I am sure I wish I knew, Mr. Leo," said Job, edging suspiciously past Ayesha, whom he still regarded with the utmost disgust and horror, being by no means sure that she was not an animated corpse; "but you mustn't talk, Mr. Leo; you've been very ill, and given us a great deal of anxiety; and if this lady," looking at Ayesha, "would be so kind as to move, I'll bring you your soup."

This turned Leo's attention to the "lady," who was standing by in perfect silence. "Halloo!" he said, "that is not Ustane—where is Ustane?"

Then, for the first time, Ayesha spoke to him, and her first words were a lie. "She has gone from hence upon a visit," she said; "and, behold, I am here as thine handmaiden."

Ayesha's silvery notes seemed to puzzle his half awakened intellect, as did also her corpse like wrappings. However, he said nothing at the time but drank off his soup greedily enough, and then turned over and slept again till the evening. When he woke for the second time he saw me, and began to question me as to what had happened, but I had to put him off as best I could till the morrow, when he awoke a most miraculously better. Then I told him something of my illness and of my doings, but as Ayesha was present I could not tell him much, except that she was the queen of the country, and well disposed toward us, and that it was her pleasure to be veiled; for, though of course I spoke in English, I was afraid that she might understand what we were saying from the expression of our faces, and, besides I remembered her warning.

Copartnership.

The undersigned have this day formed a copartnership under the firm name of F. A. Cummings & Co., for the purpose of conducting the coal and wood business at the old stand of F. A. Cummings.

F. A. CUMMINGS,
F. H. NOBLE.

When the Mercury

Crawls up beyond the 70's, then moderate your fires and lessen the coal bill. The best way to do this is to invest in our Birch Edgings, sawed and tied in bundles, ready for use, at $6.50 per cord, or four feet long at $5.00; nothing like them. But if coal must be used, our F. B. Range Coal excels anything in this market.
